"PULCHRA - THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THINGS IN THE WORLD" is a contest involving one hundred objects chosen by a committee of authoritative experts.

The public will vote for and thereby choose the ten most beautiful objects from these one hundred objects. Anyone may vote by means of personal standings in which the objects are arranged from first to tenth place according to his/her preference. Voting is carried out by filling out a form on the website www.pulchra.org. There are no limits to the number of votes that an individual may cast, but an individual may only vote once per day. Each voter assigns ten points to the object in first place on his personal standings, nine to the object in second place, eight for third place and so on until one point is assigned to the object in tenth place.

The points assigned to each object in the various personal standings will be added up to create general standings in which the one hundred objects in the contest are arranged from first to one-hundredth place according to number of points received.

The top ten objects on the standings will be the winners of the contest entitled, "PULCHRA - THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THINGS IN THE WORLD".

4.1 Procedural rules for the beauty contest entitled PULCHRA - VOTE FOR THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THINGS IN THE WORLD

There will also be a winner among voters in the "PULCHRA - THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THINGS IN THE WORLD" contest. The winner will be the voter whose personal standings have best predicted the top ten objects on the general standings. The winner will receive 10,000 euros in gold tokens.

This winner will be determined as follows:

Ten points will be awarded to a voter each time the position of an object on the general standings coincides perfectly with the position of that object on the voter's personal standings; for example, if an object in third place on the general standings is also in third place on the personal standings.

When there is no perfect correspondence, the numerical difference between the two positions will be subtracted from the full score of ten points; for example, if an object in tenth place on the general standings is in third place on the personal standings, the difference is $10-3=7$, so that 7 points will be subtracted from the full score of 10, leaving 3 points awarded to the voter. As another example, if an object in first place on the general standings is in third place on the personal standings, the difference is $3-1=2$, so that 2 points will be subtracted from the full score of 10, leaving 8 points awarded to the voter.

If a number of voters have the same score, preference will be given to those who have specified (in the space provided on the voting form) an object that deserves to participate in next year's contest.

If a number of voters still have the same score, preference will be given to the voter who achieved the greatest number of full scores (10) for the objects.

If a number of voters still have the same score, preference will be given to the voter who voted first.
